Doris "Nezzie" Terry came the United States in June of 1963. She came to find a better life for herself and her children. Nezzie started writing this book in 1980 while she was attending college. She would write riding the subway on the way to work and during her lunch hour. The book contains recipes that Nezzie learned from her mother Miss Lou when she was a child in Jamaica. She had to translate a pinch of this and a pinch of that into teaspoons and tablespoons. People ask why her food tastes so good, better than anyone else, she would say "because it's made with love."
